1. a) what is racemic modification? (5M)

Definition: A mixture having equal amounts of enantiomers is called as racemic modification (or) racemic mixture.

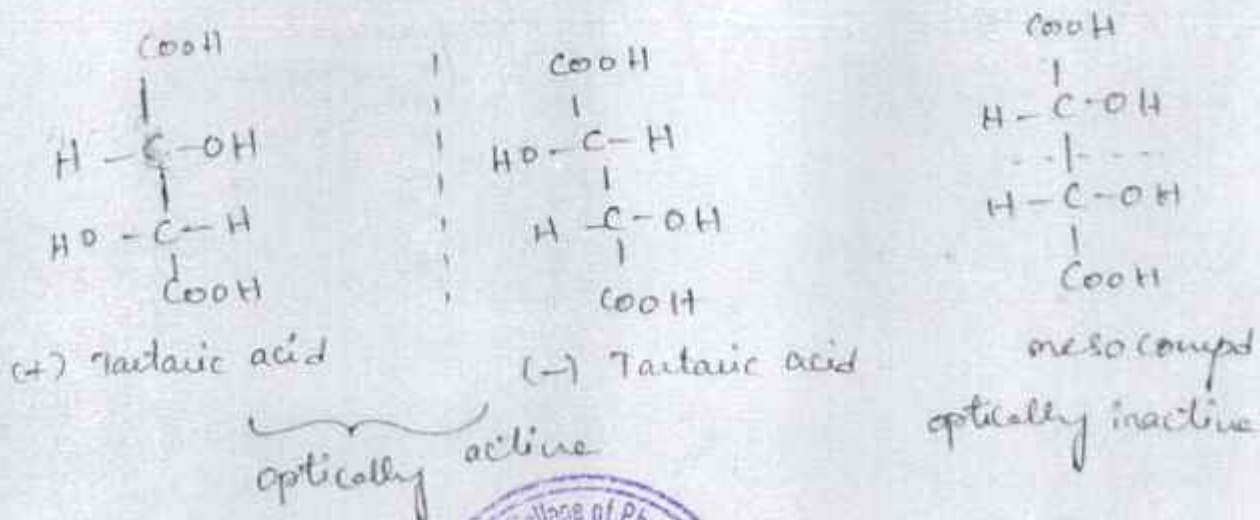

→ a racemic mixture is optically inactive due to external compensation of rotation caused by enantiomers.

This is generally represented by the prefix dl (d) (±).

Ex: (±) lactic acid ; (±) tartaric acid

Equimolar mixture of (+) & (-) form is racemic mixture → (optically inactive).

Equimolar mixture of (+) & (-) form of tartaric acid is racemic mixture (optically inactive).

The process of conversion of an enantiomer (dextro (d) (laevo)) into a racemic mixture (optically inactive) is called as "racemisation".

Racemic modification may be prepared in various ways:

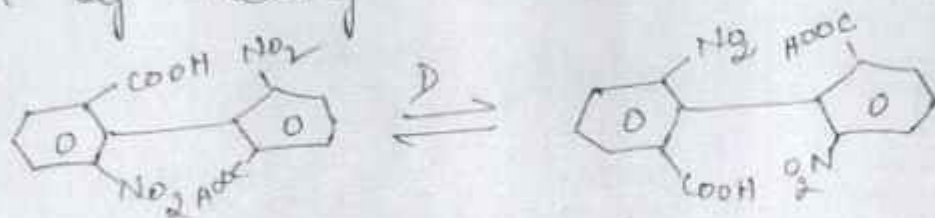

- (1) By mixing enantiomers
- (2) By synthesis / By heating
- (3) By racemisation.

By mixing enantiomers:

It is most useful method for racemic modification. It means mixing of exactly equal amounts of two enantiomers.

By Heating:

In substituted Biphenyls, the racemisation takes place just by heating.

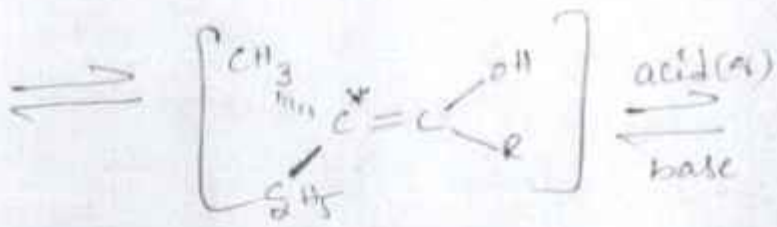

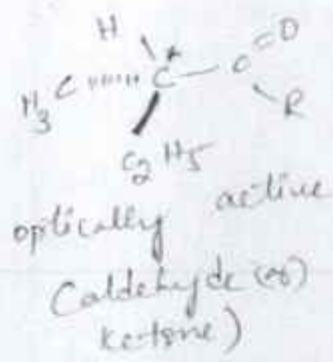

By racemisation:

Racemisation is the process of converting an optically active (d/l) compound into a racemic modification, is called as "racemisation".

Ex:

When d-tartaric acid is heated at $165-170^{\circ}\text{C}$ dl-tartaric acid is formed.

Ex:

enol form (molecule loses optical activity)

Racemic mixture

1) Discuss briefly resolution of racemic mixtures?
Resolution (or) separation of racemic modification: - (8M)

Definition:

The process of separation of racemic form into individual enantiomers is called "resolution".

In other words:

Synthesis of an optically active compound produces a mixture of both (+) & (-) isomers in equal amounts. Such mixture is called as "racemic mixture" (or) "a racemate".

The separation of a racemic mixture into its two optically active components (+ & - isomers) is called as "resolution".

Methods used for resolution of racemic mixtures: -

(a) Mechanical methods: This method involves crystallisation of racemate. The obtained crystals of one enantiomer are different from each other.

Hence they can be separated using a pair of fine tweezers & a magnifying glass.

PRINCIPAL
Geethanjali College of Pharmacy
Cheerla(V), Keesara(M), Medchal Dist. T.S. 502301.

(b) Biochemical method: In this method a dilute solution of racemic mixture is mixed with certain micro organisms (bacteria/mould). These microorganisms consume one enantiomer without affecting the other.

Ex: (+) Ammonium tartrate is rapidly destroyed than (-) form.

(c) Chemical method:

This method involves conversion of enantiomers of racemic modification into diastereomers by reaction with an optically active substance.

→ The obtained diastereomers have different physical prop's hence can be separated by fractional crystallisation.

Ex: (+) Alanine is separated by using (-) threonine.

(d) Chromatographic method: In this process the racemate gets adsorbed by some optically active adsorbents.

Ex: wool & casein is able to adsorb selectively (+) mandelic acid from an aqueous solution of (+) mandelic acid.

(e) Kinetic resolution method:

Kinetic resolution was first observed by Markwald in 1899.

In this resolution, two enantiomers show different reaction rates in a chemical reaction, thereby creating an excess of less reactive enantiomer.

Q. (a) Explain the notations R & S used in Stereochemistry with special reference to sequence rule. (8M) (3)

→ The notations 'R' & 'S' are used to describe "absolute configuration" of organic molecules.

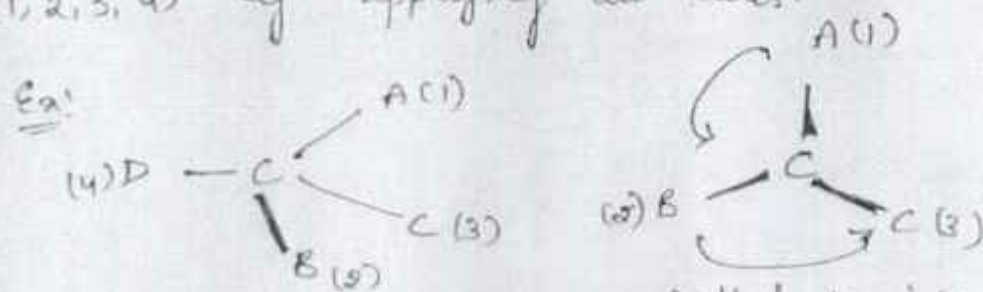

This system known as the "Cahn-Ingold-Prelog" system is based upon the actual three dimensional structural formula of the compound.

→ The symbol 'R' (from the Latin word "rectus" for right) and 'S' (from the Latin word "sinister" for left) are used to designate two configurations about the chiral carbon.

→ Thus, a compound containing a chiral carbon atom may have either an (R)- configuration or an (S) configuration.

→ This system does not provide the signs of optical rotations (+ve or -ve), the signs of optical rotations determined experimentally.

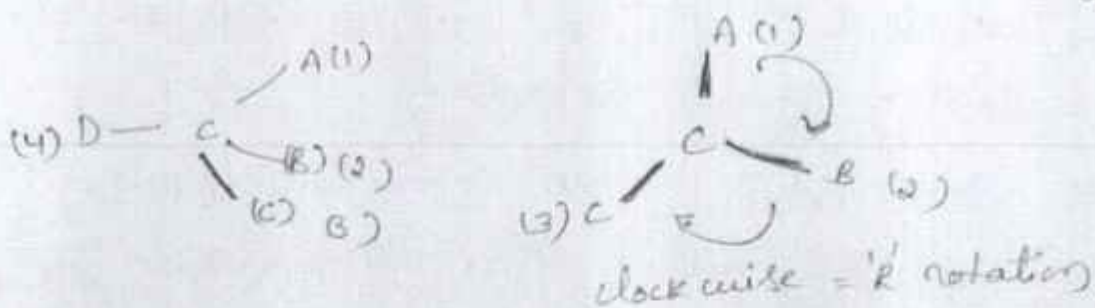

→ In the R-S system, we arrange the four groups attached to the chiral carbon in decreasing order by priority (1, 2, 3, 4) by applying the rules.

In the above example, A has the highest priority (1); 'B' has the next highest (2); 'C' has the next (3); 'D' has the lowest priority (4); i.e. priority from highest to lowest (1 → 2 → 3).

→ That means the direction is an anticlockwise, therefore we assign to this structure is "S configuration".

In the above structure priority from highest to lowest priority by moving a clockwise direction, so we assign to this structure "R configuration".

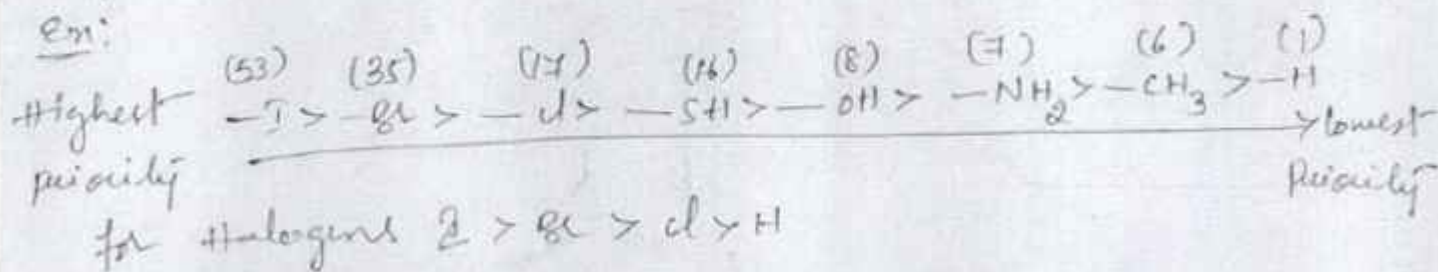

So finally the system is R/S system.

The group priorities are given by sequence rules:

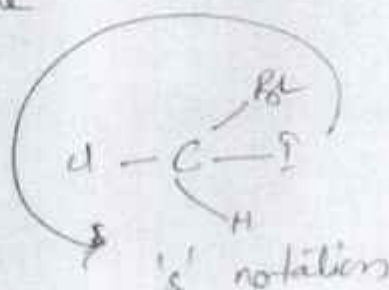

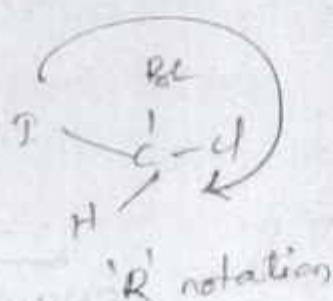

Sequence rule - 1 :-

Each atom bonded to chiral carbon is assigned a priority. Priority is based on atomic number, the higher atomic number, the higher priority.

Ex:

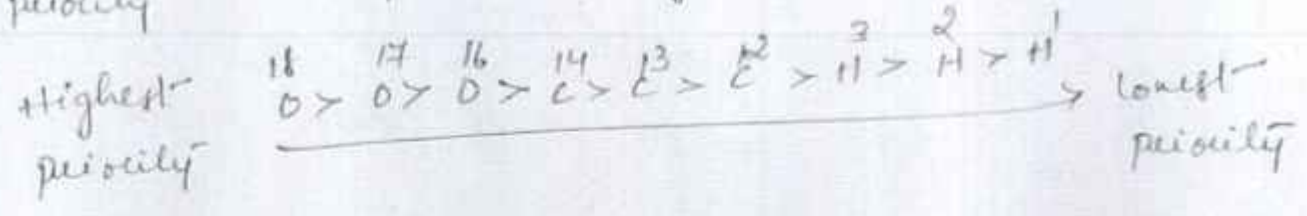

Ex: Bromochloroiodo methane

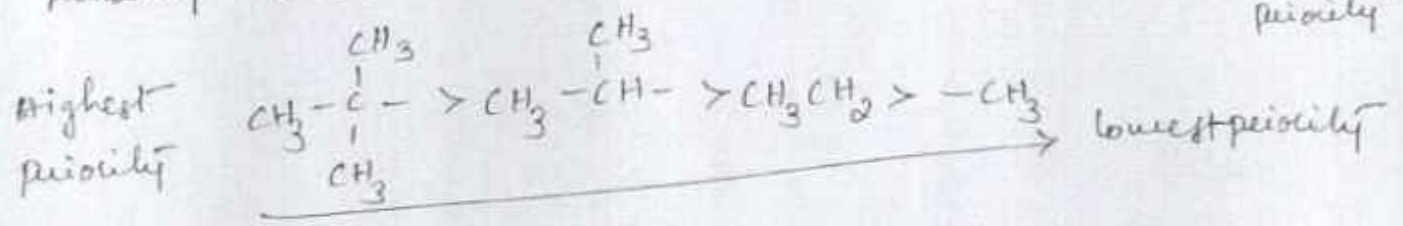

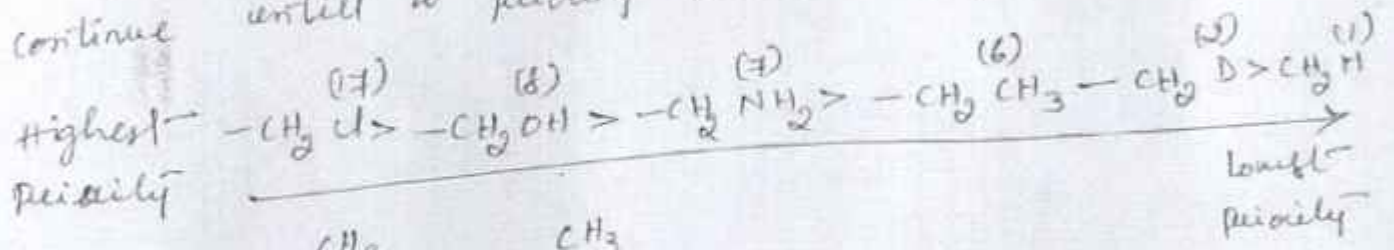

Sequence Rule - 2:

For isotopes, the higher the atomic mass, the higher the priority. Deuterium (Hydrogen-2) has the higher priority than protium (Hydrogen-1).

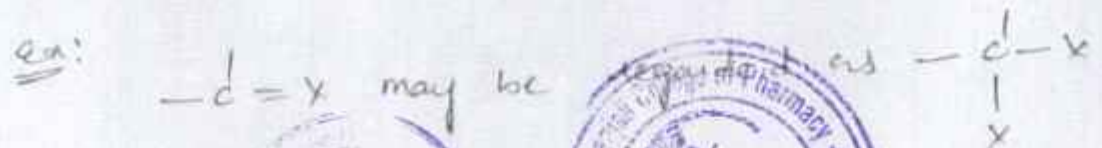

Sequence Rule - 3:

If priority can't be assigned on the basis of atomic number (or) atomic mass considering the first atom of a group, then look at the next set of atoms and continue until a priority can be assigned.

Sequence Rule - 4:

In the case of double & triple bonds, atoms particularly in the double (or) triple bond are considered to be bonded to an equivalent number of similar atoms by single bonds, that is, atoms of double & triple bonds are replicated.

2) Give examples of chiral and achiral molecules?

Chiral carbon: (FM)

A carbon atom which is bonded to four different groups is called as "asymmetric carbon atom" (a)

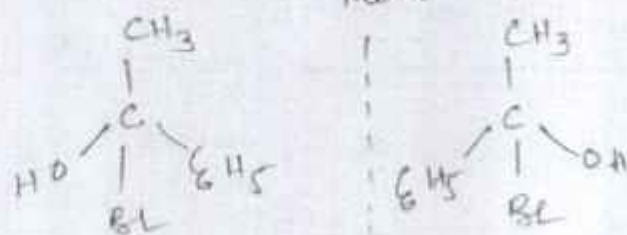

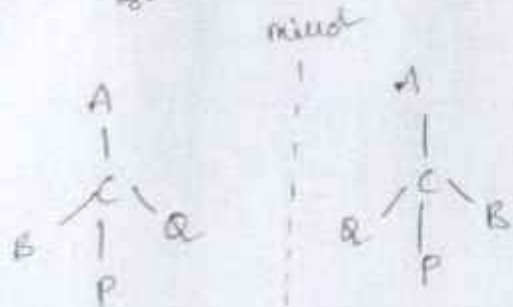

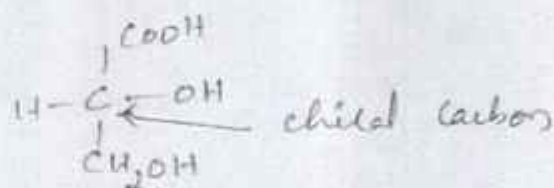

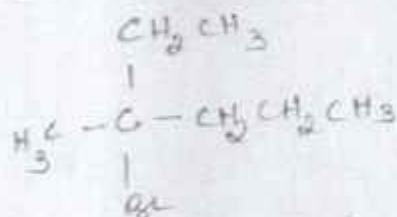

"chiral carbon" & "chiral center".

The molecules which contain chiral carbon is called as "chiral molecules".

The term chiral is derived from the Greek word "cheir" which means hand; similarly, the term chirality means handedness in reference to our two hands, each of which is the non-superimposable mirror image of the other.

→ The terms chiral & chirality are called in reference to compounds whose image is non-superimposable over itself.

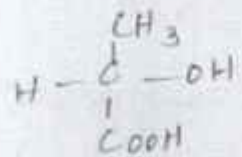

Ex:

Non-superimposable mirror images

Lactic acid: lactic acid is a chiral molecule because it has a chiral carbon atom & its molecule can't be divided into two exactly identical halves in any plane.

→ Thus it must be optically active which is found to be so because its mirror image is non-superimposable.

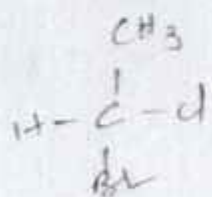

lactic acid (chiral compound)

Achiral carbon:

The opposite of chiral is "achiral". Achiral objects are superimposable with their mirror images.

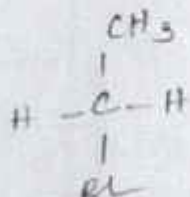

→ most achiral molecules do not have a plane of symmetry or a centre of symmetry. Achiral molecules that contain a stereocentre are called meso.

Examples: Trans-1,2-dichloro-1,2-ethanediol
(meso)-2,3-dibromobutane

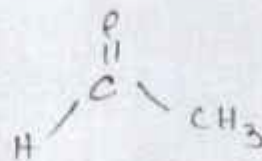

chiral

(4 diff atoms bonded to the carbon)

achiral

(Does not have 4 diff atoms bonded to carbon)

achiral

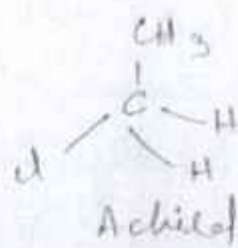

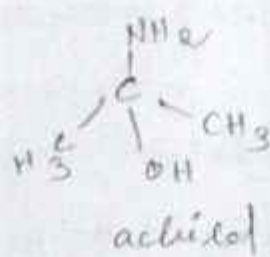

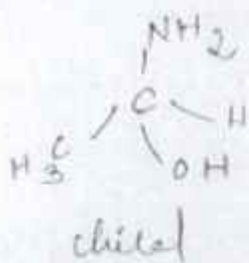

(only has 3 atoms bonded to the carbon atom)

3. (a) Define conformational isomerism? (7M)

Definition: The different spatial arrangements of a molecule that can be obtained by rotation around 'C-C' single bonds are called "conformations" (or) "conformational isomers" and the phenomenon is called as "conformational isomerism".

Free rotation is possible around the C-C single bonds (σ bonds).

This type of isomerism generally observed in alkanes.

Rotation about carbon-carbon sigma bond in alkanes.

→ The C-C sigma bond is formed by the overlap of the sp^3 hybridized orbital of carbon atoms. Therefore, the electron distribution within the molecular orbital thus formed is cylindrically symmetrical along the inter-nuclear axis.

→ Therefore, the rotation about C-C (σ bond) is almost free.

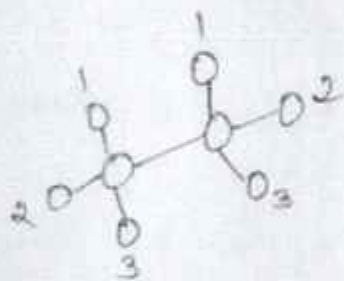

→ AS a result of this rotation, alkanes can have different spatial arrangement i.e, different relative arrangement of their atoms in space. (6)

3 (b) Give a brief account on the conformations of ethane. (8m)

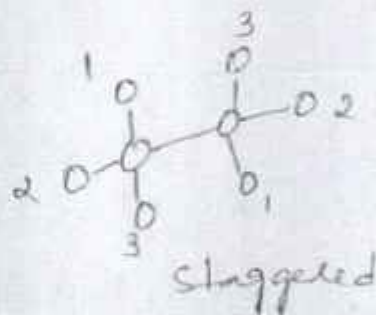

Conformations of ethane:-

Structure: $\text{H}_2\text{C}-\text{CH}_3$; the two tetrahedral methyl groups can rotate about the carbon-carbon bond axis yielding several arrangements.

→ the two extreme arrangements of ethane represented by ball and stick models. That are staggered and eclipsed forms.

eclipsed

staggered

Ball & stick models of eclipsed & staggered conformations of ethane.

Representation of the conformations:-

The three dimensional formulae of different conformations can be drawn on paper by the following representations

(a) Sawhorse representation:

⑥ Newman projection:

Newman projection formula of ethane

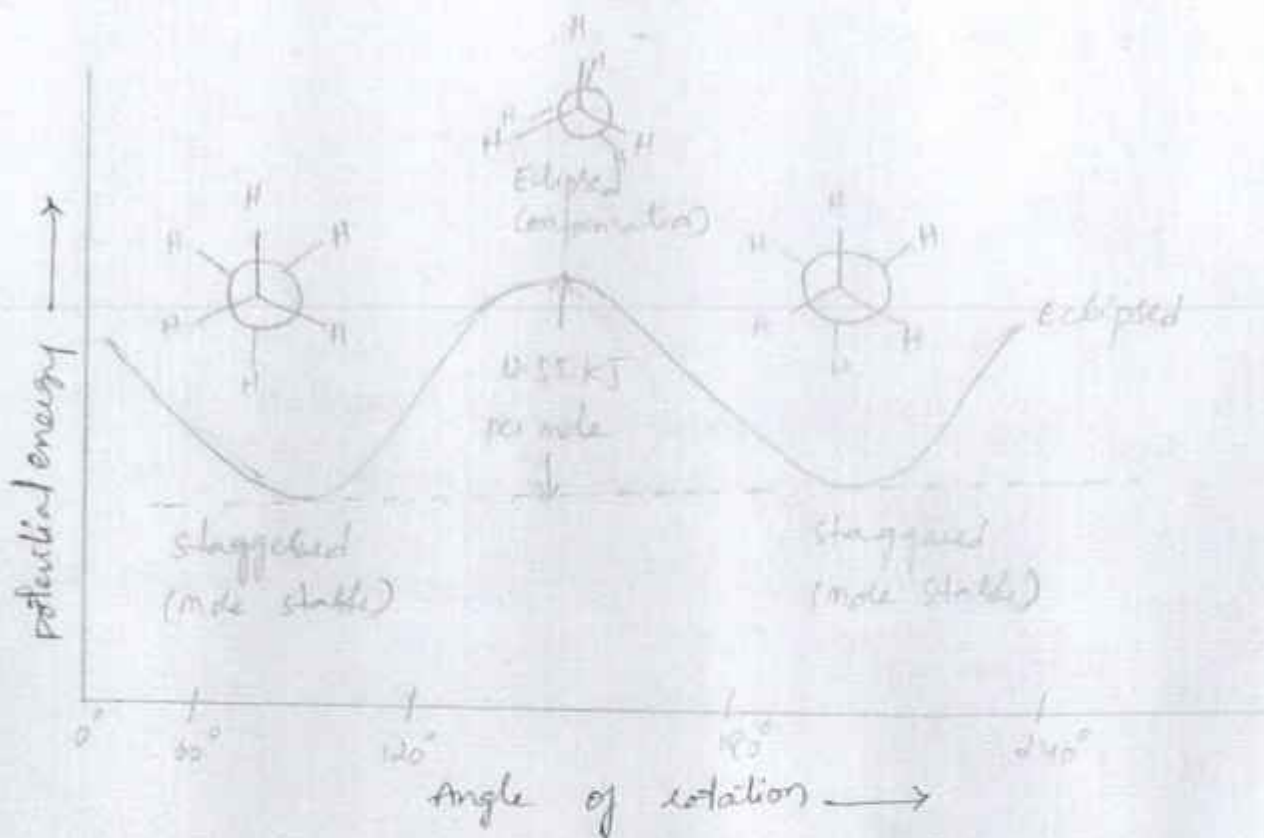

Relative stabilities of the conformations of ethane:-

In the eclipsed conformation, hydrogen atoms of two carbons of ethane, are very near to each other (2.29 \AA), whereas in staggered conformation, these hydrogen atoms are as far apart as possible (3.14 \AA).

→ The energy of eclipsed conformation is more than the staggered conformation because the repulsive interactions between the C-H bonding electrons become maximum in eclipsed form and minimum in staggered conformation.

→ The energy difference between the two forms is 12.55 kJ/mol and it constitutes the energy barrier to rotation about the carbon-carbon bond.

→ The energy barrier is also known as rotational barrier (or) torsion strain.

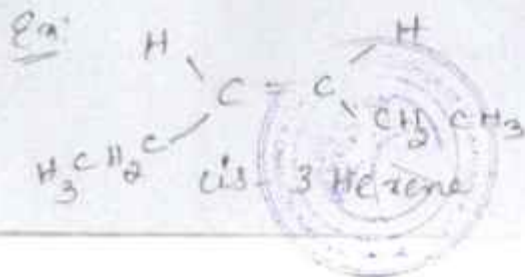

potential energy change during the rotation about C-C bond in ethane.

4. List out the different methods used in the determination of configurations of geometrical isomerism and explain any two method in detail. (15M)

Geometrical isomerism:

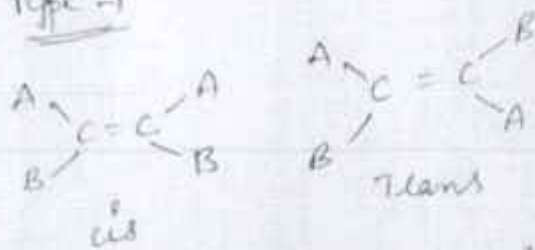

Geometrical isomerism also called as cis-trans isomerism, results from a restriction in rotation about double bonds.

Not all alkenes do not show geometrical isomerism. Geometrical isomerism is possible only when each double bonded carbon atom is attached to two different atoms (or) groups.

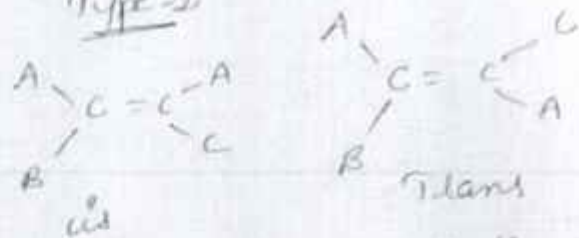

Types of cis & Trans isomers:

Type-1

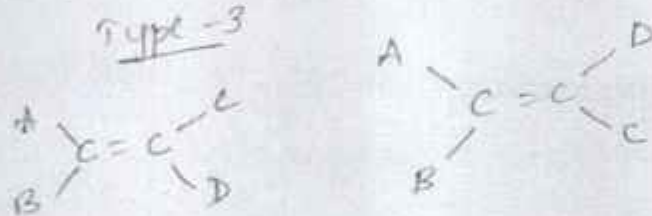

Type-2

→ In type 1 & 2 cis & trans can be used to distinguish them (because at least one group is common to both the carbon atoms).

where type-3 four different substituents are present - hence E/Z system is used.

Type-3

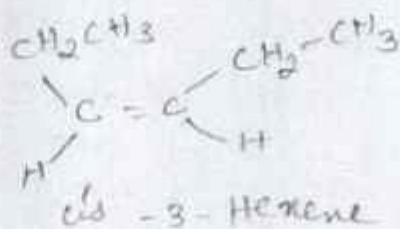

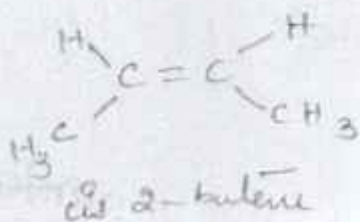

cis & Trans isomerism:

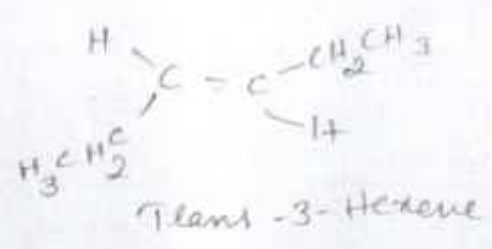

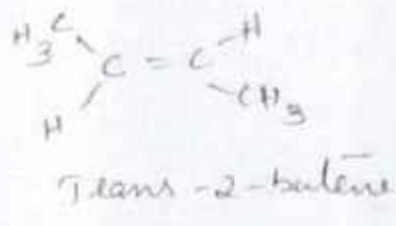

cis isomer: - In which two similar groups are on the same side of the double bond.

Trans isomer: - In which two similar groups are on the opposite side of the double bond.

→ consequently, this type of isomerism is often called as "cis-trans isomerism".

Ex:

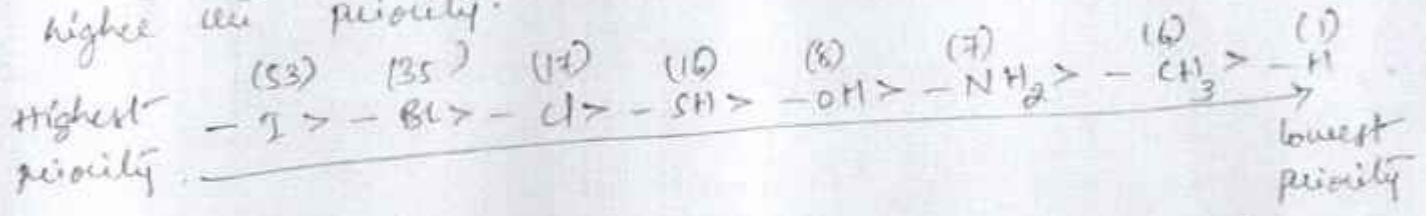

E-2 system:-

The configuration about any C=C double bond can be specified by using a set of priority rules, these are proposed in the year 1964, by R.S. Cahn, C.K. Ingold and V. Prelog.

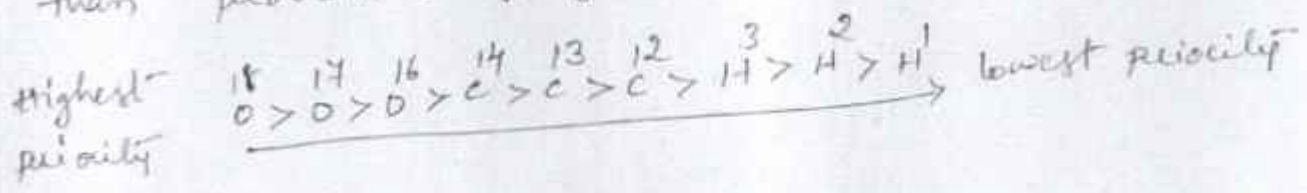

Rule-1:-

Each atom is assigned a priority, priority is based on atomic number, the higher the atomic number, the higher the priority.

Rule-2:-

For isotopes, the higher the atomic mass, the higher the priority. Deuterium (Hydrogen-2), has higher priority than protium (Hydrogen-1).

Rule-3:-

If priority cannot be assigned on the basis of atomic number (a) atomic mass considering the first atom of group, and continue to look at the next set of atoms be assigned.

NAME: Umme Aysha
CLASS: Pharm D III Yr.
ROLL NO.: 202512015

ASSIGNMENT (MID-III theory)

PHARMACOTHERAPEUTICS - II

(1) Distinguish between the management approaches involved in treating HTN, anemia and hyperkalemia in CKD patients

Ans) MANAGEMENT FOR HTN:

→ Calcium channel blockers:

- Amlodipine, Nifedipine

(+) β -blockers:

- Atenolol, Propranolol

→ Antisecretory vasodilators:

- Hydralazine, minoxidil, sodium nitroprusside

MANAGEMENT FOR ANEMIA:

→ Epoetin α 500-1000 U/kg (check hematocrit value, if >35 then stop adm.)
(check PCV & Hb per adm.)

(+) Iron supplements:

- ~~Fe²⁺~~ sodium ferrous gluconate
- Ferric chloride

→ Darbepoetin: 500-1000 U/kg (weekly)
↳ analog of epoetin

MANAGEMENT OF HYPERKALEMIA:

→ Calcium chloride 10% (IV) slow infusion (5-10 ml q 2 min)
Followed by: Fast infusion (20 ml q 2 min)

→ Calcium gluconate 10% (IV) infusion rate (10 ml q 2-5 min)

Precautions & monitoring:

→ Ca^{2+} supplements cannot be given in renal calculi patients
Alternate regimen: sodium bicarbonate (1 mial per 5 min)

→ Continuous ECG monitoring

→ Drug infusion rate should not exceed 0.5 ml/min

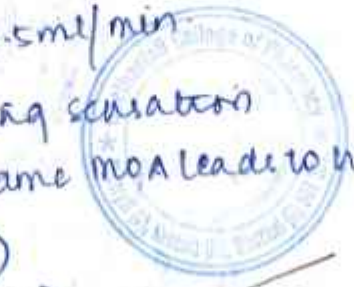

ADR: Renal calculi, tetany, tingling sensation

DI: digitalis + digoxin glycosides (same MOA leads to hypercalcemia)

→ Regular insulin + dextrose (DMS)
(insulin balances K^+ levels in liver)

10 units of regular insulin + 10%

→ sodium polychrome sulfonate

PRINCIPAL (IV) infusion

15 - 50 g IV independent in 10% sorbitol per 6h

DI for sodium polystyrene sulfonate:
 • Laxative + antacid (detoxifies therapeutic benefit)

(2) Relate the RIFLE criteria to ARF & add a note on hemodialysis.
 RIFLE: (Risk, Injury, Failure, Loss of kidney function and end stage renal disease)

RIFLE criteria for classification of AKI
 - depends on two parameters: GFR & urine output

	GFR criteria	urine output
RISK	↑ Sr. Creatinine $\times 1.5$ (or) GFR ↓ $> 25\%$	UO $< 0.5 \text{ ml/kg/h} \times 6\text{h}$
INJURY	↑ Sr. Cr. $\times 2$ folds (or) GFR ↓ $> 50\%$	UO $< 0.5 \text{ ml/kg/h} \times 12\text{h}$
FAILURE	↑ Sr. Cr. $\times 3$ folds (or) GFR ↓ $> 75\%$	UO $< 0.3 \text{ ml/kg/h} \times 24\text{h}$ (or) Anuria $\times 12\text{h}$

ARF
 persistent ARF (complete loss of kidney function) \rightarrow Anuria end stage kidney disease (> 3 months)

HEMODIALYSIS:
 Indications to start dialysis:
 • anuria ($< 50 \text{ ml/24h}$) for more than 3 days
 • uremic encephalopathy
 • uremic pericarditis
 • uremic bleeding
 • volume overload
 • pulmonary edema

BIOCHEMICAL PARAMETERS:
 • Sr. Cr. $> 6.7 \text{ mg/dl}$
 • BUN $> 100 \text{ mg/dl}$
 • metabolic acidosis
 • hyperkalemia

\rightarrow is the most common type of dialysis.
 \rightarrow with haemodialysis, a machine removes blood from the body, filters it through a dialyser (artificial kidney) and returns the cleaned blood to body.
 \rightarrow It takes about 3 to 5 hours in hospital or a dialysis centre three times a week. It can also be performed at home.

→ Before hemodialysis:

A minor surgery is done to make it easier to access bloodstream.

- (i) AV fistula (Arteriovenous)
- (ii) Arteriovenous graft (AV graft)

→ During hemodialysis: The dialysis machine does the following:

- (i) Removes blood from a needle in arm
- (ii) Circulates the blood through the dialyzer filter, which moves waste into a dialysis solution. This cleansing liquid contains water, salt & other additives.
- (iii) Returns blood to body through diff. needle in arm
- (iv) Monitors BP to adjust the rate of blood flow in & out of body

→ After hemodialysis:

Side effects: low BP, nausea, dizziness, chest/back pain, headache, itchy skin, muscle cramps, restless leg syndrome.

(3) Distinguish b/w predisposing factors & management strategies of SLE?

Ans ETIOLOGY

Advantages & Disadvantages of IUD's & Applications.

Advantages

1. It is highly effective in preventing pregnancy.
2. It is inexpensive.
3. It does not interrupt sex.
4. It does not require partner's involvement.
5. It can be used as an emergency method of birth control.
6. It can be used for a long period of time.
7. An IUD provides long-term contraception for 3 to 5 years & is cost-effective.

Disadvantages

1. It does not protect against sexually transmitted infections.
2. It may increase the likelihood of ectopic pregnancy (pregnancy outside the uterus).
3. It can cause heavier and more painful periods.
4. Cramping and discomfort occur during and 24-48 hrs after insertion.
5. There are risks during insertion and removal.

Applications

1. IUD is effectively useful in contraception similar or better than female sterilization. IUD's are safe to use for many years. They may even remain somewhat effective past their recommended end date. It provides long term contraception.

• For people with severe health conditions that make pregnancy dangerous, an IUD can be life-saving. IUD protects against pregnancy-related health issues.

Classification of Ocular Inserts

= Based on their solubility behaviour

- I. Insoluble inserts
- II. Soluble inserts
- III. Bioerodible inserts

I. Insoluble Ocular Inserts:

Two categories such as reservoir cyst and matrix system.

a Reservoir System: Drug release either by diffusion or osmotic diffusion. It contains liq, semisolid, matrix.

- Diffusional insert → The drug release from such a cyst is controlled by lacrimal fluid permeating through the membrane until a sufficient internal pressure is reached to drive out the drug out of reservoir.

- Osmotic inserts → These are usually composed of a central part bounded by a peripheral part and are of two types.

• Type 1

• Type 2.

b Matrix Systems: Mainly represented by contact lenses and particular group of insoluble ophthalmic devices.

- Contact lenses → These are initially used for vision covalently cross linked hydrophilic or hydrophobic polymer that forms a 3-D network or matrix capable of retaining water, Aq. or solid components.

II. Soluble Ocusects

Soluble inserts correspond to the oldest class of ophthalmic inserts. These are erodible, monolithic polymeric devices.

Types → (a) Based on Natural polymers Ex: Collagen.
→ (b) Based on Synthetic or Semi-synthetic polymers

a) Natural polymers

These are used to produce soluble ophthalmic inserts is preferably collagen. As the collagen dissolves, the drug is gradually released from the interstices b/w the collagen molecules.

b) Synthetic & Semi-synthetic polymers

This is based on use of polymers i.e. semi-synthetic polymers (Ex: Cellulose derivatives) and synthetic polymers i.e. polyvinyl Alcohol.

Ethyl cellulose, a hydrophobic polymer, can be used to decrease the deformation of the insert and thus to prevent blurred vision.

III. Bio-erodible Ocusects:

These inserts are formed by bio-erodible polymer which undergo hydrolysis of chemical bonds and hence dissolution.

The great advantage of these bio-erodible polymers is the possibility of modulating their erosion rate by modifying their final structure during synthesis and by anionic or cationic surfactants.

- Soluble ophthalmic drug insert. (SODI)

SODI is a small oval wafer, which was developed by soviet scientists for cosmonauts who could not use eye drops in weightless conditions.

- Collagen shields.

Collagen is the structural protein of bones, tendons, ligaments & skin and comprises more than 25% of the total body protein in mammals.

- OcuFit

The OcuFit is a sustained release, rod shaped device made of silicone elastomer, patented in 1992 and currently developed by Escalon Ophthalmic Inc.

- The Minidisc Ocular Therapeutic System.

This monolytic polymer device, originally described by Bawa et al and referred to as Minidisc Ocular Therapeutic System (OTS) is shaped like a miniature contact lens, with a convex and concave face, the latter conforming substantially to the sclera of the eye.

→ Approaches for GDDS:-

→ Different approach of gastro-retentive drug delivery system are

① floating system / low density:-

→ Floating drug delivery system (FDDS) have a bulk density lower than gastric fluids and thus stomach for a prolonged period of a time, without affecting the gastric emptying rate and drug is released at a desired rate from system.

in gastric residence time & better control of fluctuations in plasma drug concentration in residual system is stomach.

→ floating a drug delivery system (FDDS)

$$R_w / F = F \text{ buoyancy} - F \text{ gravity} \\ = (D_f - D_s) g V.$$

R_w = total vertical force

D_f = fluid density

D_s = objective density

V = volume

g = acceleration

g_f = gastric fluid

→ Non-effervescent system:-

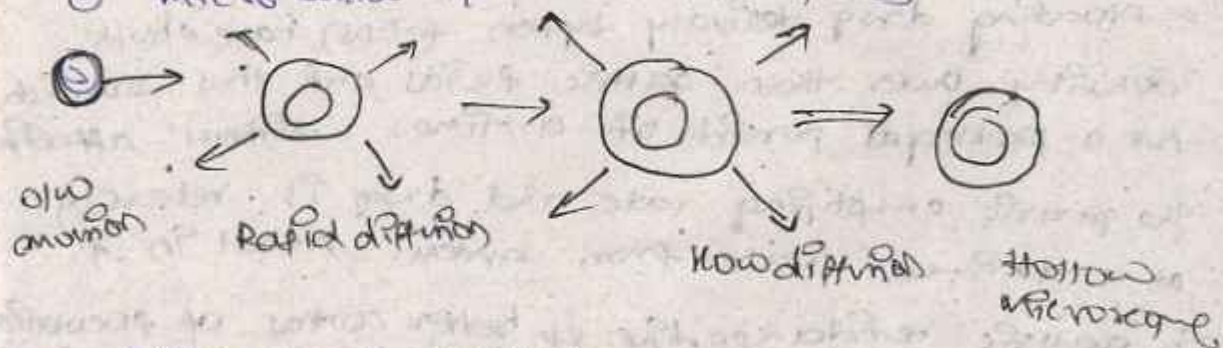

The non effervescent FDDS is based on mechanism of swelling of polymer or bio-polymer adhesion to mucosal layer in GI tract.

→ The most commonly used excipients in non-effervescent FDDS are gel forming or highly swellable cellulose, → polysaccharides and matrix-forming material such as polycarbonate, polyacrylate, polymethylacrylate as well as adhesive polymer such as chitosan or carbopol.

① hydrodynamically balanced system

② micro-balloon / hollow microcapsules

→ Effervescent system!

→ A drug delivery system can be made to flow in the stomach which may be filled in vacuum air or inert gas.

→ The gas in floating chamber can be introduced either by volatilization or chamber.

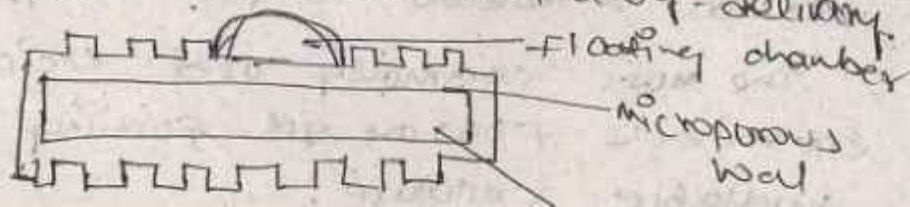

① volatile liquid / vacuum

② gas generating system.

→ The liquid volatile may be of ① Intra-gastric floating gastric intestinal drug delivery

② Inflatable gastro-intestinal drug-delivery

⑥ Inflationable gastro-intestinal delivery:-

These are systems are incorporated with an stomach. In the stomach, these system are that sacrifices the body temperature to inflate the chamber with a receptor. After oral administration impregnated polymeric matrix.

→ Bioadhesive system:-

The binding of polymers to the mucin - epithelial surface can be sub-divided to 3 broad categories

- Hydration - mediated adhesion
- bonding - mediated adhesion
- Receptor - mediated adhesion.
